Using This Documentation

- Overview – Provides late-breaking information on the Oracle Quad 10 Gb or Dual 40 Gb Ethernet Adapter.
- Audience – Technicians, system administrators, and authorized service providers.
- Required knowledge – Advanced experience troubleshooting and replacing hardware.

Product Documentation Library

Documentation and resources for this product and related products are available at <http://www.oracle.com/goto/quad10gb-dual40gb-ethernet-adapter/docs>.

Late-Breaking Information

This document contains important and late-breaking information about Oracle's Quad 10 Gb or Dual 40 Gb Ethernet Adapter.

- “Known Issues” on page 9
- “Hardware and Software Requirements” on page 10
- “OS Patches and Updates” on page 14

Known Issues

These are the known issues for the adapter.

- “QCU Tool Does Not Recognize the Adapter After a Hot-Plugging Operation \(22869085\)” on page 9
- “SR-IOV NICs Must Be Created With Unique MAC Addresses \(22809029\)” on page 10
- “Certain Commands Such as hot-plug and dladm Might Intermittently Hang When Executed in an I/O Domain \(22918373\)” on page 10

QCU Tool Does Not Recognize the Adapter After a Hot-Plugging Operation (22869085)

After an adapter is hot-plugged in, the server might fail to recognize the adapter.

Workaround: Reboot the server to recognize the adapter. If you do not intend to reboot the server, change the mode in another server before hot-plugging the adapter. Monitor MOS for the updated FW package with a fix.

SR-IOV NICs Must Be Created With Unique MAC Addresses (22809029)

No warning shows up if SR-IOV NICs are created with the same MAC address. MAC addresses assigned to SR-IOV NICs must be unique.

Workaround: Avoid creating SR-IOV NICs with the same MAC addresses. If the same MAC address have already been created, use the `dladm delete-vnic` to delete all the VNICs with same MAC address, then recreate `srio vnics` with unique MAC addresses using `dladm create-vnic`. Monitor MOS for the updated FW package with a fix.

Certain Commands Such as `hot-plug` and `dladm` Might Intermittently Hang When Executed in an I/O Domain (22918373)

You might experience an intermittent hang when using the `dladm` and `hot-plug` commands in I/O domains that have been configured to use VFs from both NPRD and primary domains.

Workaround: Subsequent reboot of the I/O domain might be needed to resume the normal operation. Monitor MOS for the updated firmware package with a fix.

Hardware and Software Requirements

Before using the adapter, ensure that your server meets the hardware and software requirements. For additional information, check the product web page at:

Where to Access the QCU Tool

The QCU tool is a command-line utility for dynamically switching the ports between various modes supported by the adapter.

To switch port modes, refer to the QCU tool instructions, which can be downloaded from: <http://www.oracle.com/goto/10gb-or-40gb-ethernet-adapter>, under Related Products.

Note - If using QSFP to QSFP cables to connect the adapter (configured in 4x10Gb mode) to a 40GbE switch, ensure that the QSFP ports on the switch are configured appropriately or support that configuration. Refer to the switch documentation for any special configurations for the QSFP port to work in the 10GbE mode.

TABLE 1 Connector and Cable Support For the Different Modes

Connector	Optical/Fibre Cable Support		Direct-Attach Copper Cable Support
	Dual 40GbE mode	2x2x10GbE mode
Port 0 (A)	2x40GbE	2x10GbE	4x10GbE
Port 1 (B)	2x40GbE	2x10GbE

Note - In the 2x2x10GbE mode, direct-attach copper cables are not supported.

---

Note - For the 2x2x10GbE mode, use a Custom 2-way splitter cable which utilizes port C and D of the MPO/MTP connector. For all other modes, standard industry cables are supported.

OS Patches and Updates

Before you patch the current OS due to version differences, update the entire OS image, if possible, on the client system.

If you cannot update the entire OS image, download the latest patch that contains the software driver at:

<https://support.oracle.com>

For additional information, check the product web page at:

<http://www.oracle.com/goto/10gb-or-40gb-ethernet-adapter>
